English Literature

Join an LMH Summer Programme to experience Oxford University's world-renowned tutorial teaching system, explore fascinating subjects with experts in the field, and gain new skills to take you further in your future academic or professional career. All courses are available in person and online.

Our English Literature courses devote special attention to the plays of Shakespeare, going beyond the page to explore their contemporary social and political influences, the myriad ways in which they have been received and interpreted over the last four centuries, and how modern research provides new depths of understanding.

Shakespeare in Context

Though they have been enjoyed by audiences for more than four centuries, an understanding of the social, historical, and cultural context in which Shakespeare's plays were originally written and performed is vital to engaging fully with them. In his lifetime Shakespeare witnessed England's Elizabethan 'Golden Age', the ructions of a change of royal dynasty, and the deep religious divisions that followed the Reformation. This course combines close textual and literary analysis of selected Shakespeare plays with a deeper understanding of this contemporary context.

- 27th June 2022 to 15th July 2022
- 8th August 2022 to 26th August 2022

Shakespeare in Reception

Since their original performances in his lifetime, Shakespeare's plays have undergone a vast array of revivals and reinterpretations. This course explores the varied reception of Shakespeare's plays, from the suppression and resurrection of theatre in Early Modern England to film adaptations in the 20th century, and examines how the plays can be understood in relation to modern social and political concerns, including race, gender, and identity.

- 18th July 2022 to 5th August 2022

Academic Programme

In a series of thought-provoking lectures and lively seminar discussions you will learn about cutting-edge research, expand your core knowledge, and explore new ideas and concepts among peers with diverse international perspectives and academic backgrounds. Weekly tutorials are a unique opportunity for focused and personalised attention from an expert academic and a space for enthusiastic debate of important ideas. Alongside no more than one or two other students, you will present and discuss your work, accept constructive criticism, and engage with the ideas of your fellow students.

Independent Study

Independent study is a crucial part of an LMH Summer Programme and of the Oxford teaching model. In addition to preparatory reading, you will have an assignment of work to complete on your own and submit to your tutor in advance of your tutorial. Each weekly assignment contributes to your final grade.

Co-Curricular Programme

The co-curricular programme provides an especially enriching learning experience beyond the classroom. Skills sessions help you to develop your personal and academic abilities, from note-taking and active reading to public-speaking and presentation skills, and guest speakers join us 'in conversation' to provoke cross-disciplinary discussion and debate.

Social and Cultural Programme

Our beautiful college campus in leafy north Oxford will be your home for the duration of the programme. From punting on the River Cherwell to a formal banquet in the college Dining Hall, our social and cultural programme will give you an authentic taste of the unique student experience at Oxford, making friends and having fun as part of a diverse international cohort.

Admissions Criteria

LMH Summer Programmes are designed for students who want to gain and develop knowledge in their chosen subject area. Unless specifically stated in the course outline, there are no formal prerequisites or restrictions regarding which subject(s) you are currently studying at university, but please note that LMH Summer Programmes are intensive courses of study aimed at undergraduates who have completed one or two years of their degree, or entry level postgraduate students.

We will consider each applicant's academic ability and expect successful applicants to have a minimum grade point average equivalent to 2:1 level on the British grading scale. For example, this would mean at least a 3.2 GPA on the 4.0 grading scale in the United States, and 80% in China.

To participate fully in the programme all students will need to have proficiency in English. English language requirements for students who are not native English speakers:

- Overall TOEFL score of 85;
- or IELTS score of 6.5 (no less than 6.0 in each component);
- or CET-4 at 550 or CET-6 at 520.

Programme Fees

Your LMH Summer Programme can consist of up to three courses, and each course lasts three weeks. You may therefore choose to join us for three weeks, or take part in multiple courses to create a programme lasting six or nine weeks.
